

LAW PROTECTS DUCKS FROM AERIAL HUNTERS

If Lieutenant O. King Grimstad, Frank Boyd, Pat Curtis and other aviators hunt ducks next fall, they must do their hunting like any other person. The government has made it a law forbidding shooting ducks from airplanes.

"Grim" plans to fly his own plane here this summer and Boyd and Curtis are planning to do the same. They can run up to Butte, rather fly up there in several hours if they want to, but they must lay off shooting ducks on the way. Laws are laws.

There isn't any law that can't be cheated on in some way. While the law specifically refers to shooting, it cannot be taken as a crime if a flyer reaches out and bags a duck after giving him a merry chase. He can duck arrest if a machine collides into a duck.

Law Protects Ducks from Grim

Clipped By:

seabix1

Wed, Sep 2, 2020