

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS DAY EXERCISES ARE CONDUCTED TUESDAY

Billings high school seniors heard their futures predicted and their idiosyncrasies called to mind Tuesday morning as they assembled in the Fox theater to observe their annual class day exercises.

The theater was more than half filled by the seniors and their parents. Centering the program around an "Indian" council fire, some two dozen members of the class, wearing "war bonnets," conducted the ceremony in a setting of a wigwam and outdoor background.

Allison Riddell gave the class poem, Joe McClellan the prophecy, Nick Maltese the history, Keith Brown the will, while Eddie Bayne, impersonating Walter Winchell, gave some "hot" gossip about various students and faculty members.

The program had frequent musical and dance selections. Jack Hay took the part of the tribe's chief and Walter Weedman was elevated as 1936 chieftain.
