

An eye on the heavens

Gazette photo by William Tufokoy

Keith Brown's model of space, with Earth assuming the role as the centerpiece, is a helpful learning tool for students of the universe. But Brown's interest in the heavens goes beyond the model globe. When the night sky above Billings is clear, he disappears through a trapdoor in his bedroom ceiling and gazes at the stars in his own observatory. See Magazine, Page 1D.

(Photo) More Keith Brown: Stargazer

Clipped By:

seabix1

Mon, Apr 20, 2020